

Lily-Victoria Clarke

21-year-old Lily-Victoria Clarke suffers from a rare neurological condition called Kleine-Levin syndrome that means she sometimes falls asleep for as long as a full month. The condition occurred while she was studying for her A-levels, but was left undiagnosed for a long time. While studying for her Foundation Degree, Clarke lost over 100 days to these episodes, which required 24-hour care. While her classmates took time off for holidays, Clarke used the time to catch-up on studying. After an eventual diagnosis Clarke went on to achieve a 2.1 BA in Make-Up & Hair for Film, Photography and Music.
